'Good citizens choose good bets'

By Gerardo Llanera
Bureau City

FOR JUSTICE PRUDIT and social anthropologist Althea Alpa, the May 14 elections is always like a battle between good and evil. Good citizens support the good candidates as the first step to fight corruption.

"I want to remind voters," Alpa said, "that the election is not just about the candidates but also about the good citizens who choose them."

Alpa leads the nationwide electoral reform movement called "Election Reform," which is a coalition of citizens who are not just for the good candidates but also for the good citizens.

"Voters should be critical, not 'captured' in the voting election," he said. "After all, it is not just the candidates who matter to make a difference in the country although they may not have the most to say in the election."

"When they choose the 'bad' candidates, we should support the 'good' candidates," Alpa said.

The press said that the election is not just about the candidates but also about the good citizens who choose them. "We should support the 'good' candidates," Alpa said.

"We should support the 'good' candidates," Alpa said. "We should support the 'good' candidates," Alpa said.

no, before arriving at a certain decision, and a "conscious" effort of directing the house.

"However, democracy is the best," he said. "From the two-party system that existed before 1970, he said, it is now, naturally, 'democracy'."

"I don't think we can go back to that two-party system," he said. "We need to strengthen the system of good parties and to find ways that are more suitable to us," he said.

Party list groups
The party list system is a challenge to the traditional political parties, although, he said, it also means to failure.

"Normally, during elections, people who are persons with common interests will converge to form a party," he said.

"The problem with party list groups is that they don't have a party," he said. "They don't have a party, they don't have a party, they don't have a party," he said.

Lamppost engineer wants to be witness

By John R. Sison
 Inquirer Staff

CEBU CITY—A MANDAUE CITY ENGINEER implicated in the controversial lamppost project asked the Unbridledness to drop the case against him and, instead, use him as a witness.

Attilio Sanchez II, Engineer II of the Mandaue City Engineering Office, denied having anything to do with the case concerning the alleged bid-rigging of the lamppost and streetlight project.

Instead, he urged Chief Clerk, Engineer in-charge of the project, Alvin C. Santos, to let the case go.

Sanchez is among the 17 officials placed under preventive detention by the Unbridledness due to the case involving the P700-million lamppost and streetlight project.

Among those implicated were former Laga Laga City Mayor Romeo B. Santos and Chief Engineering Officer, Alvin C. Santos, who is the largest of works and materials (SWS) for the lamppost.

In his affidavit, Sanchez said Mayor Santos called for a meeting on the preparation for the bid-rigging of the lamppost and streetlight project, including the general, the works, lighting, a city street project.

Sanchez, engineer in-charge of the Mandaue City Engineering Office, denied having anything to do with the case.

Sanchez said he was only one who checked the estimate for the estimated works with all the bids of the project.

FARMING IN THE CITY

Taguig residents
now (green) revolutionaries

By Kristine L. Abad

A NEW GREEN REVOLUTION IS taking place in Taguig.

The city government wants to turn its residents into farmers by converting vacant spaces, especially near the bus lanes, into gardens where they can grow organic vegetables.

Just a block from the Taguig agricultural center and the urban agriculture project was first launched in February in Convent Village, Purok B, where, most of the residents are the ones living in the urban poor areas.

Apri's team is working with a variety of local and additional income, the program is aimed at promoting the benefits of organic farming, recycling and composting.

It would be better that they become involved in a 1.5-hour to 2-hour training and a garden tour after they can easily employ residents in the village with a lot of free time on their hands.

"We asked the HUC (Planning and Urban Development Council) if we could use the lot as our demonstration farm. Eventually, the members (stopped using) it as a garbage dump and started cleaning the area," she added.

The city government donated seeds and plants while its agriculture officers conducted training and training on gardening, crop maintenance and marketing. The experts want to help residents, on the other hand, provide gardening tools and compost.

Mixed reaction

Participants in the program are mostly women who take time, working the plots and watering and pruning the plants.

Some vegetables are planted in small plots while others are in discarded jars, buckets, pots, old tires, and other creative containers.

Most of the vegetables are in the ground and only using like pechay, cabbage, lettuce, kangkong, and other leafy greens. Others have also planted eggplants, sweet potatoes and tomatoes.

Although the vegetables are grown using low-tech methods, the gardeners look good enough to be served in their own dining establishments.

The lady vegetables are ready for harvest after about a month. On the other hand, eggplants and tomatoes take at least three months to grow.

Julia said they chose their vegetables because they are the ones most often used in the kitchen.

"The project is part of the government's hunger reduction program," she explained. Since the start of the program, households with vegetable gardens have stopped buying vegetables for their cooking, which means savings for households with small budgets.

Organic food

Some families sell their produce to nearby local and nearby markets for additional income. Julia said they hope consumers would eventually be able to sell their produce in local markets, as she noted that there was a growing demand for organic food.

"When you say organic, they know that we are naturally involved in the production of the vegetables," she added.

According to her, the project helps them that gardening is actually impossible in the city. It also helps that the vegetables being grown in Taguig's little gardens need little maintenance. Just watering once a day and a bit of weeding, she said. The eggplants and sweet potatoes are easy to cultivate, she said. The kangkong ones only need a lot of pruning, she said.

For her, city officials said the program that residents in the urban gardening project has been positive, with many people requesting about the program during their meetings.

Julia said over 1,000 residents have joined the program and assistance from the city government for gardens that range from small plots to larger plots at different sites in the city. "We want all residents to participate in the project," she added.

She said that in the future, they want residents to focus on high-value vegetables like tomatoes and eggplants. Julia said they want to use the program. Convent Village residents have already started cultivating and selling their produce to nearby markets.

According to her, and later from Regina Ory who is also a supervisor in Purok B, the residents are happy that the project is still ongoing.

CONVENT Village, one of the participants in the urban agriculture project, Julia said her garden is green at the Convent Village.

It was a dream come true for thousands who flocked to the Dubai Country Club last April 30 to witness the biggest musical extravaganza to celebrate the launch of the new Smart Pinoy OFW services in "Pinoy in Dubai".

Gathering the Philippines' most sought-after performers, the event treated the guests to the things they miss most about the Philippines. Taking the lead were hosts Ariel Ignacio and Jey Valet, who had the audience screaming and shouting when they dished out appetite showcases and cash prizes in the raffish.

Adding spice to the event was a singing contest dubbed as "The Search for the Smart Pinoy Idol." The showcase challenge, conducted in cooperation with WOW! Music Sing, summoned 10 of the most revered-up contestants who sang their hearts out to impress the judges. When it was finally time to decide, David Pesa from Al Obayda Dubai grabbed the top spot and took home the $300 cash prize plus a WOW! Music Sing Video Microphone.

The crowd literally went on their feet when dancing systems where Nivanto took center stage. With an awesome display of hip and elegant moves, he got the house grooving to his hit dance singles.

The dazzling evening centered on the spectacular performances of talented musician Daga Almad and divine diva Zsa Zsa Padilla. The two headlined with a spirited set of Pinoy pop favorites that captured the hearts of everyone in attendance.

"Smart Pinoy is committed to the plight of the Filipino migrant workers," says Mr. Jose Basas, Senior Product Manager of Smart International Services. "This concert shows our migrant workers to feel closer to home, the same way Smart Pinoy OFW Services bridge the physical and emotional distance of overseas labor." Basas adds.

The event was also attended by dignitaries from the local Filipino community, such as the Philippine Ambassador to the United Arab Emirates, H.E. Lito N. Cabactian, the Philippine Consul General to Dubai, Mr. Antonio Chansing, Mrs. Virginia R. Cabactian, the Philippine Labor Attaché to Dubai, and Mr. Eduardo Mercedes Jr., Welfare Officer to Dubai.

Ambassador Cabactian was deeply delighted by the response to the event. "It excited that Smart will bring services to our laborers in a much more fun way, and many of them will be coming our way."

As Smart levels up its service by offering a wide range of customized OFW services under the banner of Smart Pinoy, the event sets a cornerstone in Smart's initiative to bring Filipinos closer to home. Armed with 100, International Text, International MMS, International 3G Video Calling and remote service services, Smart calls the joys of the Filipino worker for the betterment by delivering services that facilitate communication and foster intimacy.

The event is but the first in the series of events aimed to bring the Middle East to promote Smart and its strong stream of innovative services for the Filipino migrant workers. Smart invites all to seize the opportunity to keep families closer despite distance with the new Smart Pinoy OFW Services.

Need for change

The business started as a consulting firm, but it later evolved into a specialized in factory automation, instrumentation and industrial control systems that simplify production processes. Industrial Controls was the first in the country to house design services designed to control machinery on factory assembly lines called PLC (Programmable Logic Controller) systems.

"There was a need for an industrial revolution of sorts as technology moved on to be used more effectively of companies," he said, who now comes the city with a 2009 license.

Upon being accredited in the field and into the field of engineering before Pineda Jose, he was a teacher at the University of the Philippines Institute for Small-scale Industries and now attending master's in automation and instrumentation to help to help expand the nation's economy. His success was not achieved overnight.

After the experience of his 10-year-old career, he decided not to return and, instead, he built in the Philippines. In 2009, he bought a used car and spent P100,000 for a reason that inspired the operation of these vehicles to be driven by hand drivers. But the vision was clear. He gave it up when

Consortium hopes to turn muscovado into a winner

By Hilan P. Villa
Reporter, Visayas

CEBO CITY—A REGION-WIDE consortium hopes to expand the production of muscovado sugar into a profitable industry given the emerging demand.

Considering the health implications of eating too much refined sugar, consumers are now looking for healthier alternatives and looking for products that would make them enjoy their sugar food experience the full feeling.

Muscovado sugar is naturally processed sugarcane juice, which is less refined and characterized by its golden brown color, which makes it a healthy choice. It is a natural alternative sugar to the refined sugar, commonly known as white sugar. It is a natural alternative sugar to the refined sugar, commonly known as white sugar. It is a natural alternative sugar to the refined sugar, commonly known as white sugar.

According to the Sugar Regulatory Administration (SRA), 200 small mills are annually producing 10,000 metric tons of muscovado in 11 provinces, with Negros Occidental and Negros Oriental in Mindanao.

From with all the talk raising a full spread, the Philippines could not cope with the demand for the alternative health-conscious.

In 2004, the SRA said the Philippines is

IN ALL MY YEARS OF LEADERSHIP TRAINING and consulting, I have never observed an organization with too many leaders. Organizations can never have enough!

However, most companies narrow their vision to a limited number of leadership positions, and when hiring leaders, they think in terms of filling the top spots.

Leaders generate value

Organizations rise and fall on the merit of their leadership—at every level.

Successful organizations cannot afford to wait until someone gets "to the top" to start leading. They need 360° leaders now. Why? Because leaders generate value.

Over the years, a lot of common myths has hindered leaders in the middle of an organization.

On account of these myths, would-be leaders have failed to grasp the extent of their positive influence.

In this column, I'd like to identify these myths and look at the position requested by leaders who make an impact from the middle.

A LEADER'S WAY

John C. Maxwell

If the myth...

• The Position Myth—"I can't lead if I am not at the top."

If I had to identify the number one misconception people have about leadership, it would be the belief that leadership comes simply from having a position or title.

Wrong concepts

When we conceptualize leadership in our minds, we tend to picture the corner atop the organizational chart.

When asked to name a leader, most of us would list presidents, CEOs, or general managers.

We unconsciously think leadership is just that, when in reality, leadership is influence.

• The Destination Myth—"When I get to the top, then I'll learn to lead."

Many leaders misinterpret yesterday's experiences as tomorrow's understandings today.

Leading today prepares a leader for more and greater responsibility tomorrow.

If a leader doesn't try out leadership skills and decision-making processes when the odds are low, he'll be likely to get into trouble at higher levels when the odds of mistakes are higher and the exposure is greater.

• The Influence Myth—"I have no influence, then people won't automatically follow me."

People who have no leadership experience tend to underestimate the importance of a leadership role.

A person may be appointed to a position, but he or she must earn the right to lead. The position doesn't make the leader; the leader makes the position.

• The Location Myth—"When I get to the top, I'll be successful."

A top young leader may become someone whooping around for improvement within the organization. "If I were in charge, we wouldn't have done this, and we wouldn't have done that. Things would be different around here if I were in charge."

The desire to improve and the will to lead drive to create changes in an admirable leader's position.

Complex variables

Leaders without real-life experience, a young leader is likely to overestimate the amount of control he/she has as the top. The higher you go...and the larger the organization—the more you realize the complex nature of variables that control the organization.

• The Freedom Myth—"When I get to the top, I'll no longer be limited."

Over the years of leadership, you see how the leader underestimates, ignores, and denies and overestimates power as he or she ascends the corporate ladder.

Leadership at the highest levels is accompanied by a stunning loss of other things.

• The Potential Myth—"I can't break my potential if I'm not the top leader."

In reality, most people will never be the top leader in an organization.

They will spend their careers somewhere in the middle. There is much for the top of your career over the top of the organization.

• The All-or-Nothing Myth—"If I can't get to the top, then I won't try to lead."

People who are not used to advancing may be tempted to advance their influence whenever they have a better position.

These people look at an organization, recognize they will not be able to make it to the top, and give up.

This attitude is "If I can't be the captain of the team, then I'll accept the role of a passenger."

Defining qualities of a 360° leader

• Adaptability—Quickly adjusts to change.

Leaders in the middle may not be the first to know, but they are often the ones in charge of implementation.

Adaptive managers in the middle are well-versed in managing a change agent's team if they are not yet ready to do so themselves.

• Stewardship—Understands the real needs.

Good leaders cut through the clutter to see the real issues.

A smart person believes only half of what he hears, but a truly smart person knows what half to believe.

• Identity—Finds identity in self, not in others.

Effective 360° leaders are secure enough in who they are to not worry about where they are.

Instead of focusing on reaching a position, they focus on reaching their potential.

• Devotion—Gives fulfillment in serving everyone.

A servant leader serves the mission and leads by serving those on whom he/she is best.

The true measure of leaders is not how many of people who serve them but the number of people they serve.

• Resourcefulness—Finds creative ways to make things happen.

Creativity is the joy of not knowing it all. We seldom, if ever, have all the answers, but we always have the imagination to create solutions to our problems.

• Stimulating—Pushes the team before us.

Nobody who possesses an extraordinary mind is able to develop much influence with others.

A mentor leader must be able to let his or her personal ego go and let the courage to make sacrifices which advance the team.

• Communication—Listens to all levels of the organization. We often think of communication in organizations as being primarily top-down.

Leaders at the top or vision, are diverse, varied phrases, etc. However, good communication is a 360° degree program.

In fact, otherwise, the most critical communication comes from leaders absorbing problems or solutions at the ground level and sending them up the chain of command.

Wired to the cosmos— and shopping

THROUGH A SEA OF CRYSTALLINE, colorful and shimmering, I eagerly walked toward a computer-looking Indian man. His compelling aura was so strong that I was tongue-tied when he asked me, "Are you happy?" I was perplexed and didn't have an answer.

Just as my initial amazement was about to fade, I noticed a small, round, black, leather bag hanging from the Indian man's neck. It was a small, round, black, leather bag hanging from the Indian man's neck.

TESSA!

That's the name of the Indian man's bag.

My very first, baby steps were taken by the Indian man. From that moment on, I was hooked. I will have no second thoughts about this, despite the fact that I am a Hindu, and the Indian man is a Hindu.

It's difficult to describe what I felt when I met him. It was a mix of awe, wonder, and excitement. I felt like I had found a new world.

He was a mix of awe, wonder, and excitement. I felt like I had found a new world. He was a mix of awe, wonder, and excitement.

Ugly laundry search

The moment during the meditation "You are your body" leads me to think of the ugly (No! No!) search for the perfect body. I am a Hindu, and I am a Hindu. I am a Hindu, and I am a Hindu.

Can't forgive her boyfriend

HEARTBEAT

I am pregnant and unmarried. My boyfriend and father of my unborn child is based in the United States.

He got me pregnant when he came to visit last year. I immediately told him about it and he was so shocked as I was.

We talked me to have my pregnancy terminated, but I said no. I got mad at him because I could not believe he would suggest something like that!

We did not talk for weeks. Then, I called him up and explained to him my reasons for wanting to have the baby. He said he loved me very much and that I should not worry as I would have his support no matter what happened.

All in going well with our relation. Right now, we are both very happy and excited and he will be with me during the birth of our baby.

But I cannot forget his initial reaction to my pregnancy. Though I have not told him, deep inside, it still pains me that he reacted like that.

What must I do to forget this in such a short time?

—NORMA DUTRA

You were having sex a la fashion costume and you were shocked that you got pregnant? Clearly you were not doing it for fun but with intention as strings attached, that reaction would be reasonable.

Well, you should have brought all the cards and the past you'd send — the very possibility.

Now you say you cannot move on because he initially wanted you to have an abortion and your heart is still — embedded in his dependent reasons of you said? I cannot.

Get inside his mind for a minute. He flew all the way here to have a good time with you — and you took it all. You know you would be having sex with him and you gave him the full love and relaxation of his life.

Would he have enjoyed as much as he did had the word 4-8-8-7 flashed continuously in his mind?

And you, did you plan on having a child unceremoniously on your pregnancy? I said "Oh my God I can't believe it!"

If in way, why were you not on the pill on that a weekend at hand? But, if this pregnancy was to have him love marriage then, when you did not find.

You should have been honest with him and told him that you were not taking precautions and/or wanted to get pregnant. You called him, girl, pure and simple.

The fact that this unborn baby is now making him happy after the couple has decided should be enough to make you forgive him.

Your pregnancy shocked him. He got over it and now he is now smiling with his arms around the baby's belly.

Enough said already. Do not make a mess and dance about it anymore. Just looking at the past, too might as you tumble down and find yourself falling the one you should you give up.

Discovering Cape Town and the Cape Winelands

THE AUTHOR

AFRICA IS AN ENIGMA. NO object continues closer even close as it is to the scale, diversity or sheer impact.

With its typical problems, unusual layout and references, Stress is challenging and vibrant, backed up by real, carefully researched but sometimes heated words.

My first encounter with Africa was over five years ago, when I arrived in Cape Town, South Africa. Since then, I've made the city my second home and have grown to love the land, the people and the culture.

South Africa is a dynamic country. There is no room for boredom in this multicultural land which welcomes Desmond Tutu as its spiritual 'father' because of his role in its social and cultural diversity. Amazingly, apartheid is still fresh in people's minds for there is little apparent bitterness, and visitors to South Africa will be surprised at how freely blacks and whites mix in public places.

The only specialfield here is that between the house and barn-rooms, as with anywhere else in the world.

Cape Town is easily accessible from Manila via Dubai & from Hong Kong or Singapore, etc.

SEPHARSA reserves the right to change this notice at any time.

South Africa is a dynamic country. There's no room for boredom in this multicultural land which Archbishop Desmond Tutu aptly christened 'the Rainbow Nation'.

spans would mean to visit South Africa, in the old days, applying for a visa was a pain as we needed to send our passports to the South African High Commission in Kuala Lumpur. Fortunately, the South African Embassy moved to Johore now means less.

Public safety and security in South Africa has improved in the last few years. However, crime is still a reality that visitors to the country must face. It shouldn't be too much of a problem if one joins an organized tour, but for independent intrepid travelers, the best way to avoid becoming a crime victim in South Africa is to be street-smart, constantly aware of surroundings and knowledgeable about the areas you visit.

The same rules apply whether walking in Cape Town or Queens—no fancy jewelry, cell phones or expensive cameras. All that being said, people shouldn't let fear or paranoia prevent them from enjoying the city.

Distinctly European

Cape Town is probably one of the most beautiful cities in the world. Indeed and indeed, the city has a distinctly European aura with its open-air cafés and markets juxtaposed with Victorian-era architecture and British colonial traditions.

The city has something for everyone, and its major attractions are just short distances away from each other. It is hard to name all the most lively and charming restaurants and clubs in the world. The scenery is simply beautiful, a short drive away from the city center to pristine beaches and rugged cliffs dotted with colorful cliffs. In fact, a driving tour could easily rival the French Riviera.

The first CPMs

Further along the Cape Peninsula are the charming coastal towns of the southern suburbs. Interestingly, Ball's Bay, one of the prettiest and most beautiful towns in the area, was founded by Filipino seamen who jumped ship in Cape Town in the late 17th century. It's even possible to being someone of the descendants of these first Filipinomenos Filipino workers, who will have family names like Ponce, Cacerenas and Rosales.

At the end of the Cape Peninsula lies the Cape of Good Hope, an iconic name given the treacherous and perilous waters that have claimed the lives of many sailors.

50 Years Looking For Science

South Africa has a rich wine-making tradition, and located near Cape Town are the historic towns of the Cape Winelands. Founded in 1659, Stellenbosch is the second oldest town in South Africa and comes straight out of a storybook with its beautifully restored Cape Dutch buildings and magnificent oak-lined roads.

It's also the home of the University of Natal, Durban, one of South Africa's most prestigious academic institutions.

The other jewel of the Cape Winelands is Swartkops, the original home of the Cape's French Huguenots, whose descendants have made a conscious effort to preserve their Celtic heritage. One of the most famous descendants of this race is actress Charlize Timesweek is now recognized as the only newspaper of South Africa and one of its top-rated restaurants is Le Quartier Français, named the best small hotel in the world in 2005 by the United Kingdom's Travel magazine and one of the Top 50 restaurants in the world by the UK's New Yorker Magazine.

The visit to the Cape Winelands is complete without a wine-tasting tour. In one of the many tiny towns (Oudtshoorn alone has more than 140), each of the wine-producing areas has its own wine-museum where you can see the vineyards and the wineries in the fields. They maintain tasting rooms where you can sample their famous orange juice as well as their wine. www.capewinelands.co.za

There is no pressure to buy and one only has to enjoy the bar scene and the charming South African hospitality of the winery's staff who will guide you to the next wine.

The key to a successful wine-tasting is not to hurry. Use the time you have on the study material, a cassette, old wine notes, enjoy an afternoon laid out under a spreading oak, or just sit and drink while listening to the two exciting voices.

It's all part of the Ego-Windland report.

Pratikaning dapat ng Nucleotides, para ang bata mas may laban.

Now, Bonakid has Nucleotides!

As a parent, you want to protect your child from harm. However, you cannot do with him all the time. To help him build his own wall of defense, make sure he gets enough nutrition to help him ward off bacteria. A known nutrient is Nucleotides.

Every child will need all the Nucleotides he can get, especially when he turns one year old. This is the stage when he will naturally want to explore and discover new things. He will run around, grab things and put them into his mouth with no hesitation. He will do things that will expose him to harmful germs and viruses.

Nucleotides will help boost a child's immune system. They increase the resistance cell activity, helping him more resistant to infection.

According to Nutritionist R. Dattina, Prof. in Pediatrics, the Filipino child, in particular, stands to gain much if he receives enough Nucleotides. This is because pollution and overpopulation in most places present a tough environment for him. Nucleotides will help so that he won't get sick easily.

Nucleotides are also known as the building blocks of DNA and RNA, helping regulate and repair cells in the body. They have beneficial effects on the growth and development of the small intestine lining, the metabolism of fat and the functioning of the liver.

Because your one-year-old is growing so fast, he is producing many new cells and, therefore, he has a strong need for Nucleotides. Children can benefit from additional sources like legumes, organ meats, fish and poultry, as well as milk formulas such as Bonakid, fortified with the most number of Nucleotides.

For parents, Bonakid has combined Energy-Giving Nutrients to help keep your child healthy and strong. Now, it's made better with 6 important Nucleotides that may help avoid and speed up immune function. Nucleotides also help against diarrhea and aids in oral absorption.

So when your child turns one, give him Bonakid.

Prepare your child to face life's greater challenges. Help enhance his body's natural defense through Nucleotides found in the new Bonakid!

Having it all going on with him?

Now, Bonakid has Nucleotides to help strengthen the immune system.

When your child turns one, his body has changed. He becomes more playful. He has stronger immune system. He is protected by the immune system against the many and various diseases. He is able to fight things through energy. Give him Bonakid, made with 6 important Nucleotides. Bonakid is made with the most number of Nucleotides. Boatbuilding becomes a weekend bonding activity for Dad, Mom, kids and even the help at the Tual Lake Yacht Club in Talisay, Batangas

THE TRULPHAM? builders and their instructors pose with six of the 22 boats built in one weekend.

The family that builds together, sails together

By Constantine C. Tejano

THE SCENE WAS SOMEWHAT surreal. Imagine your housewife building a boat. And your grade-school kids and mother-in-law, too.

That was what transpired upon last weekend in Talisay, Batangas, as nine families joined and joined in the cottages of the Tual Lake Yacht Club during the Family Boatbuilding Weekend organized by the Philippine Home Builders' Association (PHBA).

The event was the first ever in the country. A popular activity abroad, in which families and groups come together with a fun, achievement-oriented project—building their own boats in two days and using them on the same weekend, "Family Boatbuilding Weekend" was pioneered by WoodenBoat Magazine in the United States.

It took people like homebuilder Kelly Perez and homebuilder-in-training Rosemary Bay Aguirre, both amateur sailors and weekend boatbuilders, to finally bring this international activity to the country.

One of the founding members of the industry-based PHBA, Aguirre built his 11-ft dinghy and learned to sail only in June last year. A few months later, he won first place in the 1st Annual Tual Lake Regatta, boat-building class. (Which just goes to show that building your own boat and sailing it, too, is a breeze.)

"Unlike in exclusive yacht clubs and other more expensive outdoor hobby groups," he says, "PHBA members take pride in sailing on more home-built boats—more, dinghies and speedboats on a shoestring budget. Some have even built fiberglass and powered boats for less than the price of a cellular phone."

Simple designs

But the event, they had invited not just boat jocks but also Bay Area moms, nannies, adults, baristas—as in, to develop more work, creativity, camaraderie, etc., than around a computer for the demographics of those who signed up for the weekend.

The activity was mainly geared toward middle-income families. Boat registration fee was set at only P4,500, inclusive of boat kit (primary marine plywood, patch, lumber, fasteners, epoxy resin, paint), public shore entrance fee, vehicle port shore moorings, goggles, gloves, quality construction boat equipment.

A boat can hardly be completed over one weekend, but PHBA loaned the process by letting and providing most of the materials and parts of the boat. Also, it had chosen two simple designs of small boats with a carrying capacity of 2.5 persons, or two if kids children.

It was former Home, an award-winning design by David Beane of an all-around dinghy that could even, called on Board with a small outboard motor, achieve for use of building, good sailing capacity (stability). The other was the 6-shoot Orion, a flat-bottom, capsizable design by Mike O'Brien (former personal boat, as it is light and easy to carry and handle).

Each family was asked to bring two boatsmen, two On Board workshoppers, two Phillips screwdrivers, a manual or power drill, four 5-inch screws, and a screwdriver. Other tools were made available during the event, which was sponsored by Tual Marine Supply and Raceway.

The whole household

But there were not just housewives and the family boating. There were parents who came in their 30s—some of them with

Sir Paul rich no more

SPENDING—FORMER BRUCE PAUL McCartney has slipped down the list of Britain's most successful stars after the Sunday Times, which estimates the earnings, made a 100 million-pound (£200-million) allowance for a household divorce fund.

McCartney is in the midst of a divorce battle with Heather Mills McCartney. Sir Paul McCartney's wealth falls this year to £225 million, down from £250 million last year, according to the Sunday Times magazine and on Friday.

The list is published on April 20 every year. Top of 2002 among pop music figures in Great Britain, David Bowie has behind such acts as Jimmy Page and Nicky Katt, with a net worth of £1.3 billion pounds.

Slipping up in second place from third was Andrew Lloyd Webber (£54 million). McCartney slips to third from second. Simon Pegg, master of "Pop Culture" and "American Idol," is fourth (£48 million), equal with Cameron Mackintosh.

McCartney and Ireland's Celine Dion are in sixth place (£25 million), followed by Elton John (£25 million) and Rick Astley (£21 million).

In terms of bank's millionaires worth, the Beatles mix with more than one million. The Rolling Stones have a combined worth of £52 million. £12 is not far behind with 407 million pounds between them, the Times said. Andrew

SPIDER-MAN LIVE! AT TOY KINGDOM

Meet the wall-crawling superhero in person during his visit to selected Toy Kingdom stores from April 29 to May 5.

Every hero has a choice: To face the darkness, or be consumed by it. This May, the greatest battle lies within!

A complex web of secrets, vengeance, love and forgiveness.

Spider-Man 3 – the third installment in a series of blockbuster films based on the Marvel comic superheroes – is a riveting adventure that will transport Philippine audiences to thrilling new heights starting May 1, 2007.

In Spider-Man 3, Peter Parker has finally managed to strike a balance between his devotion to MJ and his duties as a superhero. But there is a storm brewing in the horizon. His newfound self-assuredness is jeopardized when he faces the battle of his life against two of the most feared villains ever –

Sandman and Venom – whose unparalleled power and thirst for retribution threaten Peter and everyone he loves.

To complement its Meet & Greet event, Toy Kingdom is showcasing a wide range of collectible games and sports gear inspired by Spider-Man 3.
